A most disgraceful scene occurred at the wedding last Friday evening when a number of men and boys got some tin cans and made a terrible racket at the house, even opening the front door and raising the window to disturb the guests. This occurred just as the supper was being served. The bride and groom were speaking for the noise. They would not desert until they received a good sum of money. If it had been some "kiddie" disturbing the peace, no doubt they would have been stopped. It is not this sort of thing we want. It is to say the least, very annoying to the ladies, and poor sport to begin with, for those who take part, and as so sacred a ceremony as a wedding.

Coleman Forging Ahead. More Machinery for Mine. More Coke Ovens. Success all Around

That the International Coal & Coke Company is going ahead at a good rate, goes without saying. One only has to take notice of the prosperous condition of the people and of the town of Coleman in general to see that this is the busiest town in the Crow's Nest Pass. It is due in a great measure to the modern machinery and equipment of the coal company which is installed to take out the coal, and in another way it is due to the good class of mechanics that they employ. The men, from the managers and head mechanics to the young apprentices at the business, are industrious, sober, and workers. This means that the coal company is a credit to the surface, and is a credit to the coal company, and also to the men.

Since the beginning of the year the International Coal & Coke Company have installed one only 3 drill air compressor and two hand drills to be used on rock tunnels, necessary in connection with the inside slope laid out for the extensive development of the lower levels of this property. A diamond drill has also been added to the new equipment for prospecting purposes.

An additional 10 foot high speed fan along with the necessary engine and boiler plant is being installed a couple of miles south of the present fan, and which will take care of the ventilation of the inside workings. The big tipple has had a car load of machinery installed in it during the present summer. Screens, conveyors and picking tables have been put in place, materially increasing the capacity to handle coal for shipments, and to take stock to the coke ovens.

Contractor Disney has a gang of men at work completing the section of additional trestles to the new coke ovens for the larry to run on to convey fuel to the ovens. He is also making changes and improvements at the tipple that will increase its capacity for the storage of coal, making room for several hundred tons more.

Haillage inside the mine has been strengthened by the addition of another compressed air locomotive, putting six compressed air locomotives now in use in the mine.

The large power plant is also being materially strengthened by the addition of two boilers each of a capacity of 150 horse power. The boilers are about ready to be connected, and they will be in operation in a few days, and which, when installed, will double the present air power scheme.

A battery of forty coke ovens have been laid here, the stone work being done by our enterprising masonry contractor, E. Morino. The new ovens will be ready to receive their first coal in about one week, and will, in all, make a battery of 210 ovens.

Ever since this company started to mine, they have been forging ahead, and it is mostly due to the good management of the staff.

CHALMERS-MORRISON

On Friday evening, August 7, a pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. T. M. Murray at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Easton.

The bride was Miss Mary Beaty Gate acting as bride's maid and Mr. A. M. Morrison, brother of the bride, supported the groom. The bride looked very becoming in a dress of white lace with long trailing veil to match, trimmed with orange blossoms. The bride's maid also looked pretty dressed in white. About twenty immediate friends of the contracting parties witnessed the ceremony, after which all sat down to a lovely wedding feast prepared by Mrs. Easton, and all did ample justice to the sumptuous repast. The wedding cake was an immense one made by Mr. Louis Schorke, and the bride was again and again while cutting it. Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers drove to Frank, where they took the Spokane fast train for Seattle and other points of interest in the U. S. on their honeymoon. When they return they will take up house keeping in Coleman.

FORGING AHEAD

Hillcrest Mine Shipping Seven Hundred and Fifty Tons of Coal Daily. Gradually Increasing.

With the placing of the Hillcrest trestle upon the market one more town will be added to the fast increasing number of places of importance in the Crow's Nest Pass. Hillcrest is, of course, already famous for the excellent quality of its coal, but its existence since its inception about three years ago, has been more or less of the camp nature. Now a new order of things is about to be ushered in. The Hillcrest Coal & Coke Co., for the past three or four years under the efficient and popular management of Mr. C. P. Hill, have been giving their time and energy to developing their coal property.

The company has spent nearly $750,000 in this work, and having put their mine in good shape for a large output, they now feel warranted in looking toward the building of a town.

The town of Hillcrest is situated on a park-like tract of land at the foot of Turtle Mountain and on the east side of it. It is about two and a half miles distant from Frank, and the point of the townsite now being built on is about one mile from the C.P.R. This, however, is directed to that line by a branch railway owned by the Hillcrest company. The townsite is a beautiful spot, and every part of it can be seen from the summit of the hill near the mine entry. It is overshadowed on the west by Turtle Mountain.

On the south are groups of green hills, in the distance to the north, can be seen the rocky promontories of the Livingston Range, while a commanding view is obtained of the verdant valley of the Crow's Nest River stretching far to the eastward. From a scenic point of view the location is indeed an ideal spot. But it has other natural advantages to commend it, which are essential to the making of centres of population.

From Hill Creek an abundant supply of spring water is easily available, and it being possible to obtain a very high pressure with a comparatively small outlay on up-to-date water works systems can be put in at a minimum cost. Due to its unique location on the east side of Turtle Mountain, Hillcrest is a great extension from wind, which is at times a disagreeable feature in many parts of southern Alberta. In explanation of this it may be said that the wind from Hill Creek Pass on the south side of Turtle Mountain is a great extension from wind, which is at times a disagreeable feature in many parts of southern Alberta.

The large power plant is also being materially strengthened by the addition of two boilers each of a capacity of 150 horse power. The boilers are about ready to be connected, and they will be in operation in a few days, and which, when installed, will double the present air power scheme.

A QUESTION OF TIME.

By Clarissa Mackie.

Copyright, 1904, by Associated Literary Press.

A night in India—humid, breathless, with great stars hanging in the dark blue sky and the drowsy odor of rotting vegetation from the nearby jungle.

From his seat in a bamboo-reeling chair Welton stared, unawakened at the blazing constellations. The pinkish boy had fallen into exhausted slumber on the mat, and the huge fan hung motionless overhead.

Welton could hear the low murmur of voices from the interior of the bungalow, and he knew that by slightly turning his head he could see the pink glow of light from the shaded lamp and the reflection of two faces in the large mirror in the corner.

The two forms leaned over the piano, the white fingers of Marion Lester drawing soft harmonies from the instrument, while Akerslie murmured tenderly in her pretty ear.

And it was because of these two at the piano that Welton was very miserable and stared at the stars. He knew that Mrs. Lester was nodding over her embroidery in some obscure corner of the room, and as for himself—well, he seemed not to be in at all.

Colonel Lester was quartered at Lucknow, and when it was learned that Welton could not obtain the desired leave of absence to visit his sweetest Mrs. Lester had gone so far as to tenderly undertake the journey to Welton's isolated station at Gota Chai. The unexpected visit of the two women had thrown the little station into a blinding confusion of preparation. The depredations of a man calling tiger had furnished an inexhaustible source of conversation and had been the occasion for many tentative trips into the jungle for several weeks before the advent of the visitors, but now all was forgotten save the fact that there would be new faces to break the dead monotony of the days and the fresh and low-toned voices of refined English women.

And then Akerslie had stepped in and spoiled it all. He had come up to see Welton and to try to get the man's ear, but he had met Marion Lester, and in spite of the fact that he was Welton's guest and that he knew the relations existing between the two he paid assiduous court to the girl.

Thus far she had repelled his advances with a dignified coolness that seemed to inflame him to greater ardor. This evening, however, the gentleness of her manner toward him and her careless treatment of her lover had driven the latter to sulky solitude in the room.

When the blue smoke wreaths from

"WELL YOU REALLY ASKED, DIDN'T?" his clear had formed a dense cloud which obliterated the airy heavens from his gaze. Welton dropped his eyes and stared at two points of yellow light that oscillated near the ground.

They were two inches apart, and they moved in unison. Welton calculated that they must be just without the bamboo stockade which inclosed the compound.

There was a prickly feeling along the spine, and he could feel the hair raising slightly around his forehead as he realized that Chuni had neglected to close the great gate and that there was perhaps only a hundred feet intervening between the man eater and the open window of the little drawing room.

He thought rapidly, with his eyes fixed on the lambent points of flame in the velvet gloom of the gateway. He made a dash for the window and the safety that lay beyond the beast would spring before he could close the shutters behind his retreating form. If he could make Akerslie hear, at least the women would be safe.

"Akerslie!" he called in a low, clear whisper.

"Yes?" came the other man's lazy answer.

"Close those shutters instantly! The man eater!" His words were lost in the quick manipulation of the iron rods from within, and the shutters fell with a clang, blotting out the glow of light and leaving Welton alone to face the tiger.

The momentary confusion found the best into action. Welton could see the slow approach of the yellow eyes, could hear the paddling of the great paws on the sandy path, and now his long slender form was dimly outlined against the starlight.

Welton remembered that he had left his revolver on his dressing stand. It could not be much of a fight with all the odds on the other side.

rate, when the tiger had borne him away to his air Akerlie, the coward—suddenly there was a fierce crash, a stifling odor of fur. Welton's hand instinctively flew to his pocket, and to his surprise the revolver was there. There was a crack at the end of a yellow shaft of light and a rush of air as the beast sprang toward him.

He dropped to the floor, and with a tremendous shout the animal struck the closed shutters and dashed back with a bloodcurdling scream of baffled rage and pain.

Welton had leaped over the railing and slipped behind the protecting trunk of a giant tree. The animal snuffed about the veranda, and presently there was a cry of startled fright, and Welton remembered the sleeping pinkish boy. He saw the tiger dropping down the path, his jaws gripping a dark, moaning bundle.

He knew that, unmolested, the beast would now retire to the jungle where he was his victim and that the occupants of the bungalow as well as himself would be free from danger. He ground his teeth and aimed for the other eye. He put it in.

In the light of the stars he saw the best silver, dropped the dark bundle, which sped frightfully away, and then came toward him with bleeding, blinded eyes and snarling mouth.

It was only a question of time now. Around the tree he dodged, and then he saw that the tiger came toward the stockade. He would lure the beast from the vicinity of the bungalow and fight it out with him in the open space before the jungle, which rose dark and forbidding in the background.

Before the tiger could enter, the tiger would enter, and the tiger would enter.

Again he heard the crack of his revolver, and yet again, and still the tiger did not fall. Still he traced the man blindly, remorselessly. There were two cartridges left in the chamber, and then—again Welton fired, once, twice. With a shudder, he felt the muzzles of the tiger's head.

"By Jove! Billy seems a bit sleepy! Wake up and bear the news, old man!" Welton recognized the facetious tones of Akerslie's familiar friend. He opened his eyes slowly, wonderfully. Overhead the great stars were hanging in the dark blue sky, and there was a rank odor of rotting vegetation from the nearby jungle.

He was reclining in the bamboo chair, and Marion stood behind him with her soft hand upon his rumpled hair, and she was looking through the open window of the drawing room, and in the opposite direction he could see that the gate of the compound was closed.

"The tiger?" he asked dazedly, moving his cramped limbs.

"What made you think of that?" asked Akerslie ruefully. "I was just going to spring it on you! Chuni's been telling me about his engagement to Marjorie Booth—a dear schoolmate of mine—and I'm afraid we were so much interested in talking about her that we forgot you! Were you really asleep, Billy?"

"I hope so," said Billy impressively.

The Glory of Life.

The human race is still in its infancy. Up to the present moment, with a few great exceptions, man has lived mostly an animal existence. The brute is only partially educated out of him. He has not yet evolved that tender character, that diviner man, foreshadowed in the beast. How few people ever get anything more than a mere glimpse of the true glory of life! For us as we see real sentiment to life or anything above the real animal existence and animal passions. Most of us look upon our occupation as a disagreeable necessity that somehow or other must have been and might have been avoided. The trouble with many of us is that we think too meanly of ourselves. Our social aims and material, selfish ambitions have so lowered our standards that we think downward instead of upward; we grovel instead of soaring. Our lives are materialistic, selfish, greedy, because the love of the base of our brains, down among the brute faculties. We have never explored to any great extent the upper regions of our brain, never developed our higher intelligence—Success Magazine.

A Courteous Pirate.

That even a Chinese pirate may have a strong idea of civility is proved by the following extract from an item in the North China Daily News: "The launch at once stopped when ordered to do so. The leader of the pirates was then heard to order his men that they were not to molest any one who voluntarily handed over his or her valuables. Among the passengers, however, were a father and son, the latter of whom, it seemed, was a little too slow in obeying the pirates' order to hand over his money, with the result that he was shot. Upon hearing the shot the pirate craft, who was on deck, came down into the cabin and, seeing the father of the unlucky young man lamenting over his son's death, addressed the old man and cooed with him on his sad and unfortunate and 'deserved' death. The chief finally brought out of his pocket a roll of $50 and handed the sum to the old man as a consolation, bidding him to refrain from further lamentations."

Weakness in the Spring

Is overcome when the blood is made rich and red by Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food.

Weakness is the word which best describes the condition of most people in the Spring.

It may be bodily weakness, tired, draggy feeling and lack of energy and vigor.

Or it may be weakness of the heart, the nerves, the stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels or other vital organs.

Wherever the trouble may be located, the cause is the same—failure of the blood to supply proper nourishment for the maintenance and restoration of the cells and tissues of the body and its organs.

Stimulants only give temporary relief. What is absolutely necessary is rich, red blood such as is formed by the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food, to nourish the organs back to health and vigor so that they can derive nourishment from the food.

Because of its blood-building qualities Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food is marvellously successful at a Spring restorative. It is a box, at all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto, Ont. Portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, M.D., on every box of the genuine.

Philosophy. Two Scotchmen occupied the same building, one of them living on the lower floor and the other upstairs. One evening the man on the first floor, hearing a commotion in the hall, went out to see what the trouble was, and found that his friend had fallen downstairs. "Did ye fa' down, Rob?" he asked. "Aye," said Rob, "I fell down, but I was comin' down whether or no."

"Miss Kitty, I've heard it said that a kiss without salt is like an egg without salt. Is that so?" asked the young man, who was despatched to smitten.

"Well, replied Kitty, 'I don't know I can't tell for in all my life I never—'

"Never ate an egg without salt," continued Kitty.

SOWING FLAXSEED.

The Quantity of Seed Required.—The Best Time to Sow.

Prof. Saunders, of the Dominion Experimental Farm, in a pamphlet on flax sowing, published in 1904, says: "When flax is grown for its seed only it is usual to sow from two to three pecks per acre, and when thus thinly sown the plants are much branched, and are said to average a larger yield of seed. This, however, seems to require further investigation, and the character of the season may influence the results very much."

From tests made on the Experimental Farm at Brandon, Man., in 1904, it would appear that heavier sowing may be desirable, even when flax is grown for the seed only. These experiments were made on plots of one-tenth of an acre each on land which had been summer fallowed, with the following results:—

"Sown 16th May, 40 lbs. seed per acre, ripe 18th August, yield per acre, 19 bush, 38 lbs.

"Sown 15th May, 90 lbs. seed per acre, ripe 18th August, yield per acre, 20 bush, 50 lbs.

"In these experiments the flax was sown with the grain drill, cut with a binder and threshed with the separator, care being taken to feed slowly. Experiments were also conducted at Brandon in 1904, in sowing at different dates with the following results:—

"Sown 11th May, 90 lbs. seed per acre, ripe 13th August, yield per acre, 18 bush, 12 lbs.

"Sown 12th May, 90 lbs. seed per acre, ripe 16th August, yield per acre, 20 bush, 50 lbs.

"Sown 13th May, 90 lbs. seed per acre, ripe 22nd August, yield per acre, 21 bush, 14 lbs.

These experiments will need to be repeated for several years before any general conclusions can be drawn from them. At the Experimental Farm at Brandon, Man., in 1904, the heaviest crop of flax seed was produced when sown on the 17th May, when in 1891 gave a record yield, from seed sown on the 3rd of June.

"From the experience thus far gained it would appear, that 'the best time for sowing flax throughout the Canadian North-West would be from the 15th to the 25th of May. The flax plant is tender in the spring and easily injured by frost. It is less liable to injury from this cause in the autumn; but if exposed to much frost before the seed is ripe, the seeds become dark and discolored, and are then very much reduced in value."

Some experienced flax-growers hold that it is safe to sow flaxseed as late as June 15th, and that good results may be obtained with the methods of flax farming, it may be said that the first breaking on prairie soil is a very early one, and that the seeds are then in the ground in the spring, the land is ready for breaking in the autumn, by which is meant the breaking to a depth of about four inches. This cuts the deep-seated weeds, and covers it with about two inches of fresh soil from below."

Prof. Saunders strongly recommends flaxseed as a cover crop for the season either on or back-breaking of the prairie soil or on back-breaking. He says: "To make this clear to those who are unacquainted with the methods of flax farming, it may be said that the first breaking on prairie soil is a very early one, and that the seeds are then in the ground in the spring, the land is ready for breaking in the autumn, by which is meant the breaking to a depth of about four inches. This cuts the deep-seated weeds, and covers it with about two inches of fresh soil from below."

THE REVELATION.

Her Suspense Was Wearing While It Lasted.

Long and steadfastly he looked into her eyes. She returned his gaze steadily and without winking. For a minute neither spoke. Then she broke the silence:

"You think it is?" She hesitated.

"He gazed into her eyes again—those great, heavily-lidded eyes—those eyes that had been looking at him for so long."

"I did not want you to understand," he began.

"She interrupted him with some impatience. 'Can we not understand each other?' she cried. 'It is the suspense of it all is wearing me out. Do you wish me to believe?'

"He broke in upon her. 'It is not what I wish you to believe,' he said gently. 'It is what you must know. I have determined.'"

"She covered her face with her hands as if preparing herself for the worst. But she was a woman of a certain imperious woman. She would show him that she could suffer and make no sign. She rose from her chair."

"Well," she demanded.

"It is only a little granulation," he continued. "Nothing serious what ever. I will give you a prescription. The charge will be $10."

When tiny pieces of felt are found in various parts of the piano it is evident that the tiny silver meths are at work and will in time do much damage.

Humboldt's "Cosmos."

Alexander Humboldt's achievement, that of beginning and finishing his monumental "Cosmos" after his seventy-sixth birthday, is perhaps the most wonderful mental triumph in all the history of literature.

Agostino.

The term "agostino" was invented by Professor Fluxus about 1885 to indicate the mental attitude of those who withhold their assent to whatever is incapable of proof. In regard to the divine existence, miracles and revelations, agostinos neither dogmatically affirm nor deny, but simply say "Agostino" (I do not know; they are incapable of proof).

Hard to Answer.

"Now, I want to know how long it will be before I get an answer to this letter, a young lady demanded, with a well-tale blush, as she handed the postoffice clerk a communication addressed to her lover."

"That depends," said the clerk reflectively. "If he's in jail, they will let him write once a week, and in some places only once a month. If he's dead broke he'll have to wait until he earns the price of a stamp, and I have no data as to which base he is in."

"I'm not," said the girl, "but I am a cold, disinterested third person, and if it's smallpox they won't let him write at all. Then, again, if he's got a new girl—"

She didn't wait for the clerk to complete his catalogue of contingencies.

Bowel Disorders

During the hot, sultry days of summer everybody is in peril. This peril creeps upon us unawares and weakens and disables us without a moment's warning. Serious stomach and bowel troubles are liable to attack at any time. Most stomach and bowel disorders can be easily cured if taken in time. "In time" means "at once." Bowel disorders weaken the system so quickly that there is danger from the start. No ill to which human beings are subject debilitates so rapidly, and few cause greater suffering. An effective safe remedy should be kept in the house at all times. We have a few preparations which we have no hesitation in recommending.

BLOWING HIS OWN DRUM

Last week our esteemed coten, the Frank Paper, gave a little squeak. It was intended to hit hard, but there was no weight behind it. In the first place the gentleman himself who are connected with the race meet, objected very strongly to the manner in which the Frank Paper criticised them, as they spent a good deal of time and money to make a race meet a success, and gave the drum a free ticket to the ground and expected something better from so able an exponent of what is right. These gentlemen claim they did all in their power to make the race meet enjoyable to everyone, and we would just as soon take their word for it as the editor of the famous Frank Paper. Furthermore, there are any differences in the expression "all that a place could comfortably hold," or "all that a place could comfortably seat?"

The Frank Paper says it has no jealousy to foster. Still before the Miner had issued its first number, the Frank Paper man said to a business man of Coleman, he knew we would not live, and that he would get some of our business, but we would not get any of his. This, on the face of his remarks, is as much as saying that Coleman cannot support a newspaper.

It is evident that the Frank Paper needs an editor, for it never had one yet. What do the people think of a being in human form supposed to be a man, "roasting" a policeman when he was dead. When he could not defend himself? Would he have done so if the policeman had been alive?

It is plainly evident that our friend does not know the "fundamentals of newspaper work," or even common decency, as when he drove the Hon. W. H. Cushing, minister of public works, to Coleman last spring to meet the board of trade, he had the cheek to sit in the meeting and pass remarks and give suggestions as though he was one of them. This man does not know the duties of a school boy, let alone those of a newspaper. When you bring a government man to Coleman again, Mr. Drumm, to meet the board of trade, sit on the side walk and smoke your little cigar until the meeting is over, and then do not try to parade the streets with the committee until you are invited.

Truly, the "people of Coleman know the Frank Paper." The Miner does not in any manner, wish to hurt the Frank Paper, only we would like to see the Frank Paper use a little more discretion when writing about dead men, coming to Coleman with officials, etc., etc., etc.

Just in closing we might say that in an editorial "contributed" to the Frank Paper, it accused the Hon. Robert Rogers of Manitoba, of concocting "thin red line" slanders. We are not going to try and protect the Hon. Robert Rogers, as that gentleman can take care of himself, or is it getting worse? and many sigh for the good old times. Robert Burns, the famous poet, in one of his touching dirges, wrote:

"But see him on the edge of life
With cares and sorrows worn,
Then age and want, oh, ill-matched pair,
Thou man was made to mourn."

Our sister city of Fernie a week ago was sorely stricken, in fact, wiped out by the scourge, fire. But as soon as the news of the calamity flashed over the wires, all the cities, towns and villages in the province, and many throughout the Dominion, and even cities in the United States, hastened to the relief of the stricken city. Indeed, there seemed no provincial or even international boundary to the expression of practical sympathy which did not respond immediately to the cry for relief. Our coten of Spokane, did themselves credit in alacrity and magnanimity of their response. Nor was our own town of Coleman slow to show their sympathy. No sooner was the news confirmed than Alex. Cameron, chairman of the council, and F. G. Graham hurriedly called a meeting of the council, and that body decided to buy all the blankets in town, also several dozen pairs of socks and a hundred shirts. These goods were sent by express to Fernie on Monday. At night Mr. Cameron received the following telegram from mayor Tuttle:

"Sincere thanks for timely assistance. This week a subscription list was circulated in town by Messrs. A. Cameron and M. Morrison, and in a short time over $417.75 in cash was collected, the International Co. and Coleman Co. generously contributing $200 of the amount. The miners as a body grasped the situation and collected the very generous amount of $958.50, making a total for Coleman of $1,000. After deducting $221.30 to pay for supplies already sent, the balance of $779.20 was sent to mayor Tuttle. In addition to the hand-some subscription sent the Fernie sufferers, several hundred of our neighbors from Michel, who fled from their homes when sure destruction threatened them, were accommodated by the citizens, all the men willingly giving up their beds to the refugee women and children, who are now happily back to their own homes, the danger given over.

At the battle of Trafalgar, Nelson signalled to the fleet, "England expects every man to do his duty." We today, have the satisfaction of feeling that Coleman has shown that she is not unmindful of the needs of her sister city in the day of her calamity. Burns was undoubtedly correct when he said: "Man was made to mourn." But we feel justified in saying now-a-days, "He will not mourn without the sympathy of his fellows."

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Graham on Wednesday.

Saskatchewan Elections

SPECIAL TO COLEMAN MINER

Regina, Sask., August 14.—The result of the Saskatchewan elections up to 11.30 tonight are as yet indefinite. The last reports which have been coming in slowly would show the Liberals to be leading in nineteen constituencies, and the Provincial Rightists in seventeen. This would leave five ridings still to be heard from. Both leaders have been elected by large majorities. Scott in Swift Current and Haultain in South Qu'Appelle. Three cabinet ministers were defeated. Attorney General Tupper of Prince Albert, was defeated. Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture, and Hon. J. A. Calder, minister of education, were defeated.

Later returns give Haultain 20 probable seats, Scott 17, 3 seats to hear from.

Regina city elected Bole, Liberal, Saskatoon city elected McNab, Liberal, while Moose Jaw city elected Wellington, Provincial Rightist.

The contest has been a very close one, even now it is impossible to make a forecast. The five constituencies not reported are rural divisions in the outlying portions of the province, and are mostly in the north.

FIRE ON STEAMER

The steamer "Premier," running on Lake Winnipeg, was burned to the water's edge last Thursday morning at Warren's Landing. Eight people were burned to death. The list of those who perished included one passenger, Miss Mary Elizabeth Povah, a teacher in a school at Winnipeg, and sister of our esteemed townsman, Mr. J. F. Povah, treasurer of the International Coal & Coke Co., of Coleman. Miss Povah left the city two weeks ago to spend a holiday at Warren's Landing and was booked for the return journey when the fire started. She was the daughter of Mrs. Povah of Fort Rouge, and a sister to A. H. Povah of Glines & Stewart, real estate dealers. Miss Povah was a school teacher and had finished half of her contract at Osborne school. She came to the city at the close of the term to enjoy a vacation, and a short time ago decided to make the trip to the north. She was due to arrive in Winnipeg last Friday morning had the accident not occurred. Her brother will accompany the crew that goes down on the wrecking dredge and will stay until the body is recovered. W. F. Povah of Dawson City, is a brother.

NEW INCUMBENT FOR ST. ALBAN'S

The Rev. Charles Hopworth arrived from Calgary last Saturday to take charge of the parish of St. Alban's, and the "Church of England." Mr. Hopworth has been in Canada about three months, having come over from England for the benefit of his health. Mr. Hopworth conducted his first service in St. Alban's last Sunday evening. He is a pleasing speaker, and although he arrived unexpectedly, and few knowing there would be service, yet a good congregation was present. Service will be held regularly every Sunday evening at 7.30, to which all are invited.

Mr. Hopworth is a Master of Arts, of Lincoln College, Oxford, England, matriculating November 1886, graduated B.A. in June 1890, graduated M.A. June 1901, ordained deacon by the bishop of Peterborough December 1900, licensed curate to St. Saviour's Leicester under the Ven. Archdeacon of Leicester, Rev. J. Stocks. Leaving St. Saviour's at the expiration of two years owing to the removal of the Archdeacon Mr. Hopworth for six months, studied for the priesthood with Rev. H. Maynard at Bishopwood, Ross-on-Wye, Herefordshire, ordained priest June 1902, was the licensed curate to Holy Trinity, Rothwell, Northamptonshire. July 1902, in the same diocese of Peterborough under the Rev. J. Morley, vicar of the parish. Mr. Hopworth was there for one year and was then offered the charge of Cosby, near Leicester by his bishop. He was there for three years and a half, during which time the ancient church of St. Michael and All Angels was restored at a cost of $7000.

HILLCREST NEWS NOTES

P. S. Douglas and wife, recently of Blairmore, have moved to Hillcrest. Blairmore's loss is Hillcrest's gain.

Rev. Mr. Haddon, Methodist missionary, Frank, has started a Sunday morning service. This work will be appreciated.

Hillcrest's physician is Dr. L. E. Downing. The doctor comes recently from London, Ontario, and has taken up his permanent residence in Hillcrest.

Hillcrest has one organized society, it is the celebrated United Mine Workers. Mr. W. McFlanagan is president and Messrs. J. A. McLenahan and H. T. Cooper, are the secretaries.

As an evidence that Hillcrest is growing, it may be said that she has now in the neighborhood of fifty dwellings. More are being constructed. The company are building five new cottages.

Mrs. Welsh and family have left for Blairmore, where they will reside for a time. No school in Hillcrest at present is the cause. This is hoped to soon be remedied. Mr. Welsh continues with the company at Hillcrest.

Hillcrest's new hotel, The Union, is now open, and has been running little more than a month. The house is thoroughly up to date, it has twenty-five furnished bedrooms, and this number will be increased as the demand requires. It has a steam heating plant, will be lighted by electricity, and its table is second to none in the Pass. Mr. Charles Leblanc, lately of Winnipeg, is the genial and attentive manager. The travelling public will find in Mr. Leblanc a man thoroughly acquainted with the hotel business. We look for the hotel's large patronage.

NOT INTENDED FOR A CHESTNUT

Our Advertisement which has been running for some weeks without change was not intended for a chestnut, although some of you may be inclined to consider it as such. We have been so busy selling merchandise and handing our customers the glass of water, which we advertised that we would give gratis with every dollar's worth of merchandise purchased, that we haven't had time to change our advertisement, and although this practice takes up much of our valuable time we intend to continue it until the water system here is arranged so you will be able to help yourself, which will be in a few days.

We expect a very heavy Fall and Winter trade, and have prepared for it by laying in an extra supply of merchandise, which we will sell at popular prices, as we have done in the past, notwithstanding that times have been hard, and money scarce with many people, our trade has increased 25 per cent. We want to increase it 50 per cent, and we want your trade to do this. Once you get into the habit of buying good merchandise cheap you will like it. It is our business to tell you where you can acquire this habit. Give us a trial, and you will not have to be made acquainted with the place again.

Remember the place where you can buy good merchandise cheap.
